Cornwell's Chemists

Brand Guidelines

Maintaining a consistent brand

Cornwell's Chemists

The core elements of the Cornwell's brand covered in this document include Logo, Colour palette, Fonts and Stationery.
By keeping these elements consistent we will promote Cornwell's credibility with clients.
Correct and consistent use of our branding will help reinforce our professional approach.
It communicates what we are about and the standard of service clients can expect.

Background
The Cornwell's logotype is our company's primary identifier. Regardless of where the logo is being used, it should never be altered or adapted in any way.
The Cornwell's logo has been created with three basic options, the Primary two line logotype, the Primary one line logotype and single circular stamp. The following deals with the use of the Primary logotype.

The general exclusion zone
The logo should be surrounded by a minimum white space area as indicated opposite. This area must always be free of text, colour areas or other graphics elements and logos. It is simply calculated by taking the full height of the "Circular Stamp" in the Cornwell's logotype and stepping it once horizontally and once vertically.

Minimum page edge positioning
Logo positioning from page edges can also be easily calculated by taking the full cap height of the "Circular Stamp" in the Cornwell's logotype and stepping it twice horizontally and once vertically.

The minimum size
External agencies should not use the Cornwell's logotype any smaller than 40mm wide.

Single colour mark
The colour versions of the freestanding logo should preferably appear on a white background or reversed in white on dark backgrounds. Colour applications should use Cornwell's dark or light blue, alternatively it may also appear in a mono version (Black).

Circular Stamp Logotype
The Circular Stamp logotype is not for general use on it's own and has been specifically devised for a certain number of limited items.

Typeface use: Internal & External
Our new corporate typefaces are 'Garamond Premier Pro' and secondary typeface Helvetica. A consistent application of the corporate typefaces will help unify all of Cornwell's printed publications.

Externally printed typeface
All publications from Annual Reviews down to digitally printed Prescriptions produced by external professional agencies must use the corporate font. Four basic weights have been allocated to allow for a high degree of flexibility over the publication range.

Corporate colour system
Establishing a distinctive colour palette for the new Cornwell's identity is vital to strengthening our brand recognition. A consistent use of colour can make our communications more recognisable within the market sector. The Cornwell's colour system is broken down into two basic palettes – Primary and Secondary. The following will explain each palette type, the print breakdowns and where to use the palette.

Cornwell's Primary Dark Blue
Cornwell's Blue is the colour of our logo and our primary brand colour. We also use it as a solid background to distinguish various client facing publications.

Cornwell's Secondary Light Blue
This colour is used intimately with the Primary blue to emphasise certain elements of the logotype or to differentiate typographical information.

Stationery general
The Cornwell's stationery suite includes Letterheads, Compliment slips and Business cards. Templates are available from the head office.

Letterheads
Each regional office has it's own address information at the bottom right of the Letterhead. All the other offices contact details are listed below. To maintain a consistent appearance, regardless of where a Cornwell's letter is generated, it is crucial that the templates are not altered.

Compliment slips
Again each regional office has it's own address information at the bottom right of the Compliment slip to denote the senders location.

Business card
The business card design follows on from the letterhead with the exception of the regional contact information which has been moved to the back of the card.
